

ROUND THE WORLD TRIPS through LIVING ROOMS

create moments of encounter

Respect for different ways of life grows with each living room visit

People with and without migration background experience moments at eye level in the direct neighborhood.

Round the World Trips
through Living Rooms connect people

The strength of the idea of the Round the World Trips through Living Rooms lies in the easy planning and implementation.

There could be open living rooms all over the world, if many interested people follow this example.

get to know foreign cultures

Do you know how many different nationalities live in your hometown?

Perhaps roughly a 100 different nationalities live there, just like in the small German town of Rheda-Wiedenbrueck, where the Round the World Trips through Living Rooms started in 2011.

Become a world traveler in the house across the road or around the corner

In the atmosphere of the private living room of your host you have the opportunity to look at photos, hear about customs and traditions and memoirs of the host's country of birth.

Round the World Trips through Living Rooms

What is this?

People who are born in a different country open their living rooms and tell other people about their country of birth.

Who?

Anybody who wants to talk about his or her country of origin can contact me and become a guide.

Anybody who is interested in people from foreign countries and in what they have to say can check in on the homepage:

www.weltreisedurch.de

and get a passport for their first trip to collect country stamps in it.

Where?

Catrin Geldmacher had the idea of the Round the World Trips through Living Rooms in 2011 and gradually there are more and more towns and cities with open living rooms.

Would you like to have these trips in your hometown as well?
